It was the first time that the National Russian Anthem was played in the Congress of the Philippines in honor of one only person: Natalya Bronzova, a writer and artist, who promotes Russian culture and Art in the Philippines! Ms Bronzova become very much part of the Philippines society as she lived in Manila for over five years and befriended many outstanding people here.

Ms Bronzova has written three books on the Philippines, the country of her soul. Earlier this year she had a solo exhibition at the Cultural Centre of the Philippine, becoming the first Russian artist being exposed there; this is now also true for the House of Representatives! We can truly say that Natalya's art is loved and recognized in the Philippines for its unique style, powerful positive energy and spirituality.
